Elline
IT Programmer

• Consulting • Technology • Outsourcing

Hi, my name's Elline. I'm an IT Programmer in Accenture. My role entails delivering software enhancements and looking for ways to continuously improve the work or processes that we deliver.

I joined Accenture straight from college. I came from a very non-IT background. But Accenture is an equal opportunity employer and that paved the way for my successful career shift. With a positive outlook, dedication, supportive colleagues and willingness to learn, I was able to overcome the challenge of adapting to the competitive world of IT.

What I love best about Accenture are the vast opportunities it provides its employees. The size of our organization and the range of clients that we serve from all types of industries give us various career options. Also, we have a lot of learning opportunities. We have a portal of online trainings, classroom-based courses, bootcamps for IT folks and even non-work related learning opportunities, examples of which are free language classes for those who want to learn a second or third language, yoga, photography, and many more. So if you're the type of person who is hungry for knowledge like me, Accenture is definitely the place to be!
